About the Domestic Violence Program

In 1983, the Colorado General Assembly created the Domestic Violence Program (DVP), located in the Colorado Department of Human Services (CDHS), Office of Children, Youth and Families (OCYF). DVP is the sole government entity dedicated entirely to funding and sustaining community-based domestic violence programs across the state. DVP is the lead authority within CDHS and state government for issues pertaining to domestic violence.

- Our Mission

Partner with communities in order to promote the safety and well-being of domestic violence survivors and prevent acts of domestic violence through good stewardship of funding resources.
- Our Vision

Promote and sustain a culture free of domestic violence for all Coloradans.
- Funding

DVP oversees approximately $3 million annually in revenue from a compilation of five diverse sources, which is pooled and distributed through an application process to Colorado’s community-based domestic violence advocacy organizations.

Nondiscrimination Commitment

DVP is committed to serving Colorado’s community-based domestic violence advocacy programs and survivors without prejudice regarding level of income, actual or perceived sex, including gender identity, gender expression, religious beliefs, actual or perceived sexual orientation, immigration status, age, race, creed, ethnicity, color, national origin, marital status, spoken language, disability, or military status or any other factor. DVP is dedicated to funding programs that are committed to creating an environment that is accessible, culturally responsive, and trauma-informed for all domestic violence survivors and their families.

Remembering Brooke Ely-Milen

Brooke Ely-Milen passed away in January of 2021 following a long illness. Brooke was a valued member of the DVP team for 13 years, including serving as the DVP Director for five years. Brooke had a generous heart, a big smile, a strategic mind, and most of all, an unwavering commitment to survivors of domestic violence and the advocates who support them.

We are grateful to have known and worked with Brooke. She was an amazing person who carried a spirit of optimism and determination. We know Brooke is greatly missed by the entire anti-domestic violence community in Colorado.

Annual Funding Sources

DVP receives funds each year to support Colorado organizations that work to promote the safety and well-being of domestic violence survivors and prevent domestic violence. Funding from these sources was distributed to 45 community-based domestic violence advocacy organizations in Colorado.

Family Violence Prevention and Services Act:

Beginning in 1984, Congress approved the Family Violence Prevention and Services Act (FVPSA). This created a grant for states to assist in establishing, maintaining and expanding domestic violence programs and projects to prevent family violence and to provide immediate shelter and related assistance to survivors of family violence and their dependents.

Colorado Domestic Abuse Fund:

Beginning in 1983, the legislature established the Colorado Domestic Abuse Fund (CDAF), which allows individual taxpayers to make contributions in support of funding for domestic violence advocacy services.

Temporary Assistance for Needy Families:

Starting in 2004, the Colorado Legislature appropriated funding for domestic violence advocacy services through the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) block grant.

Marriage & Civil Union Licenses and Divorce Filing Fees:

Beginning in 2009, $20 of the fees collected from marriage and civil union licenses and $5 from each divorce filing are directed to DVP for distribution to domestic violence advocacy organizations.

DVP Committees

These committees provide insight, direction, and monitoring of the Domestic Violence Program and guidance regarding distribution of funds.

Colorado is comprised of diverse local communities. The organizations that receive DVP funds work to provide effective outreach and intervention services that meet their local needs. Providing accessible, culturally responsive, and trauma-informed advocacy services is a common goal for meeting the needs of all survivors.

2020 - The Year of Responding to COVID-19

In early 2020, the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic began disrupting life and work routines across Colorado. DVP-funded organizations began taking urgent action in March of 2020 to protect staff and clients from the emerging public health crisis while continuing to provide essential services. Emergency shelter facilities modified their protocols on an ongoing basis as they adjusted to new information on the best ways to protect their staff and clients. Nearly all employees in non-residential service roles had to begin working remotely—while balancing family, technology issues, confidentiality mandates, politics and street protests, and the stresses of a global pandemic.

Numerous adjustments were made to the services being offered. Among the adaptations were revising cleaning protocols and enacting physical distancing practices, repurposing funds to pay for hotel stays in order to prevent crowding at shelters, developing “chat” systems to stay in touch with clients who weren’t able to speak on the phone, producing training videos for youth and other community members, implementing telehealth services, and much more.

Covid-19 One-Time Funding Supports

During 2020, DVP received two CARES Act allocations; one from a federal source and one designated by the State Legislature. These CARES Act dollars were distributed to organizations in support of their efforts to prevent, prepare for, and respond to the COVID-19 public health emergency while addressing the evolving needs of domestic violence survivors. The CARES Act funds were vital in not only offsetting significant reductions in funding that organizations experienced but especially in helping organizations purchase essential supplies for mitigating COVID-19 risks to clients and staff.
